

DHC USA Inc. presents three savory, time-saving Wine Reductions

Add the essence of slow cooking to your favorite sauces, stews,
and entrée recipes

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif., October 6, 2006—

Busy schedules rarely allow you to prepare meals the way you would like. Therefore, DHC USA Inc., a distinguished provider of high-quality skincare products, makeup, and fine foods, proudly unveils three varieties of wine reduction sauces that can easily turn an everyday meal into something special. Look for these new sauces in three varietals: Blackberry Merlot Reduction—hand-pressed grapes and blackberries are aged in American oak for a full-bodied flavor to complement dark or red meats; Tangerine Zinfandel Reduction—a medley of citrus juice, herbs, and spices that enrich fish courses; and Cherry Port Reduction—blended from Rio Douro grapes and imported cherries that easily liven pork and poultry dishes. Each is brewed in small batches using all-natural ingredients, followed by a low-heat vacuum process that completely eliminates the alcohol while preserving flavors and freshness.

“A good wine reduction sauce can take an hour or more to prepare,” notes Miles Perdigueria, Marketing Director of DHC USA, headquartered in San Francisco, California. “Who has that kind of time, especially for a midweek meal? With our new line of wine reduction sauces, you can enjoy the complex flavors of select wine varietals paired with delicious fruit—already lovingly prepared and ready to complement your favorite dish. Each sauce is a savory and zesty combination that adds such elegance to a meal, your guests will think it was prepared by a professional chef.”
