

audrey Magazine

December 2005 / January 2006

P. 24

White Sunscreen, 1 fl. oz., # 451 $23

Yasu Maskay
Public Relations Coordinator
DHC USA Inc.
115 Sansome Street, Ste. 400
San Francisco, CA 94104
ymaskay@DHCcare.com
415.908.1400 ext. 321

DHC
FOR BEAUTY AND HEALTH
www.DHCcare.com

audrey style | IN THE KNOW

Style-phile

Fashion and style tidbits to keep you ahead of the curve and in the know.

EDITOR Anna M. Park

Audrey It-Girl: Dana Valenzuela loves her gig as a PR fashion rep because "my days vary so much and today is never like yesterday and tomorrow will not be like today." Similarly, Dana says she never falls prey to a single fashion look, perhaps due, in part, to her multicultural heritage — Mexican and Chinese. "I looked totally Chinese when I was a baby, complete with the Bart Simpson flat top that so many Chinese babies have," she says. "Now I practically have to prove my ethnic background to people because it's assumed that I'm 100 percent Latina or 'other.'" Of course, says Dana, it's very possible to have respect and love for both cultures when you're biracial. "I can eat enchiladas with chopsticks without a problem!"

Lynn Linh bronze tank.

Méli Mélo "Katherine" jean.

ParkVogel cashmere turtleneck.

DHC white sunscreen SPF 25.

Your daily uniform: I'm not one to conform to a uniform. I like fashion way too much to fall into a rut. So one day I will sport some jeans with a vintage blouse from Mexico; or trousers from Banana Republic, coupled with a Lily McNeal cashmere wrap and a sexi cami underneath.

Favorite designer: I'm over the moon about Tom Ford because he created silhouettes in sleek, sexy proportions in bold colors. As for fun, flirty, everyday stuff, I'm a fan of Tracy Reese and Catherine Malandrino ... and all of my clients, of course!

Beauty secret weapon: Sunscreen, sunscreen, sunscreen. 365 days a year.