Beauty Find: Save Face

What: DHC Blotting Paper

Why: It's happy hour, and that means a nice drink out with the ladies and the opportunity to chat with the cute bartender you've been eyeing. Before you make your move, you make a quick beeline for the ladies room and set yourself up in front of the mirror. After a slightly frantic dig through your purse, you manage to locate your elusive lip gloss. You look up, ready to get your lips all gussied up, and are mortified to find that your face is as shiny as your new metallic top.

Luckily, your girlfriend is there to witness your near panic attack, and calmly hands you a pint-sized DHC blotting paper and tells you to pat your face with it. As if by magic, this tiny, phenomenal piece of paper removes all the excess oil from your skin leaving your glossy lips the only thing shining on your face, ensuring a lovely chat with the bartender.
